14. The Court may remit the award or any matter referred to arbitration to the re-consideration of the same arbitrator or umpire, upon such terms as it thinks fit,— [S. 520.]

(b) where the award is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution;

(c) where an objection to the legality of the award is apparent upon the face of it.

15. (1) An award remitted under paragraph 14 becomes void on failure of the arbitrator or umpire to re-consider it. But no award shall be set aside except on one of the following grounds, namely:— [S. 521.]

(3) On such application being made, the Court shall direct notice thereof to be given to all the parties to the agreement, other than the applicants, requiring such parties to show cause, within the time specified in the notice, why the agreement should not be filed.

(4) Where no sufficient cause is shown, the Court shall order the agreement to be filed, and shall make an order of reference to the arbitrator appointed in accordance with the provisions of the agreement or, if there is no such provision and the parties cannot agree, the Court may appoint an arbitrator.

18. Where any party to any agreement to refer to arbitration, or any person claiming under him, institutes any suit against any other party to the agreement, or any person claiming under him, in respect of any matter agreed to be referred, any party to such suit may, at the earliest possible opportunity and in all cases where issues are settled at or before such settlement, apply to the Court to stay the suit; and the Court, if satisfied that there is no sufficient reason why the matter should not be referred in accordance with the agreement to refer to arbitration, and that the applicant was, at the time when the suit was instituted and still remains, ready and willing to do all things necessary to the proper conduct of the arbitration, may make an order staying the suit. [Cf. IX of 1899, s. 19.]

(2) Upon the judgment so pronounced a decree shall follow, and no appeal shall lie from such decree except in so far as the decree is in excess of or not in accordance with the award.

EXECUTION OF DECREES BY COLLECTORS.

[S. 321.]

Powers of Collector.

1. Where the execution of a decree has been transferred to the Collector under section 68, he may—

- (a) proceed as the Court would proceed when the sale of immoveable property is postponed in order to enable the judgment-debtor to raise the amount of the decree ; or
- (b) raise the amount of the decree by letting in perpetuity, or for a term, on payment of a premium or by mortgaging, the whole or any part of the property ordered to be sold ; or
- (c) sell the property ordered to be sold or so much thereof as may be necessary.

[S. 322.]

2. Where the execution of a decree, not being a decree ordering the sale of immoveable property in pursuance of a contract specifically affecting the same, but being a decree for the payment of money in satisfaction of which the Court has ordered the sale of immoveable property, has been so transferred, the Collector, if, after such inquiry as he thinks necessary, he has reason to believe that all the liabilities of the judgment-debtor can be discharged without a sale of the whole of his available immoveable property, may proceed as hereinafter provided.

[S. 322A.]

3. (1) In any such case as is referred to in paragraph 2, the Collector shall publish a notice, allowing a period of sixty days from the date of its publication for compliance and calling upon—
 Notice to be given to decree-holders and to persons having claims on property.

- (a) every person holding a decree for the payment of money against the judgment-debtor capable of execution by sale of his immoveable property and which such decree-holder desires to have so executed, and every holder of a decree for the payment of money in execution of which proceedings for the sale of such property are pending, to produce before the Collector a copy of the decree, and a certificate from the Court which passed or is executing the same, declaring the amount recoverable thereunder ;
- (b) every person having any claim on the said property to submit to the Collector a statement of such claim, and to produce the documents (if any) by which it is evidenced.

(2) Such notice shall be published by being affixed on a conspicuous part of the court-house of the Court which made the original order for sale, and in such other places (if any) as the Collector thinks fit ; and where the address of any such decree-holder or claimant is known, a copy of the notice shall be sent to him by post or otherwise.

4. (1) Upon the expiration of the said period, the Collector shall appoint a day for hearing any representations which the judgment-debtor and the decree-holders or claimants (if any) may desire to make, and for holding such inquiry as he may deem necessary for informing himself as to the nature and extent of such decrees and claims and of the judgment-debtor's immoveable property, and may, from time to time, adjourn such hearing and inquiry.

(2) Where there is no dispute as to the fact or extent of the liability of the judgment-debtor to any of the decrees or claims of which the Collector is informed, or as to the relative priorities of such decrees or claims, or as to the liability of any such property for the satisfaction of such decrees or claims, the Collector shall draw up a statement, specifying the amount to be recovered for the discharge of such decrees, the order in which such decrees and claims are to be satisfied, and the immoveable property available for that purpose.

(3) Where any such dispute arises, the Collector shall refer the same, with a statement thereof and his own opinion thereon, to the Court which made the original order for sale, and shall, pending the reference, stay proceedings relating to the subject thereof. The Court shall dispose of the dispute if the matter thereof is within its jurisdiction, or transmit the case to a competent Court for disposal, and the final decision shall be communicated to the Collector, who shall then draw up a statement as above provided in accordance with such decision.

[S. 322C.]

5. The Collector may, instead of himself issuing the notices and holding the inquiry required by paragraphs 3 and 4, draw up a statement specifying the circumstances of the judgment-debtor and of his immoveable property so far as they are known to the Collector or appear in the records of his office, and forward such statement to the District Court ; and such Court shall thereupon issue the notices, hold the inquiry and draw up the statement required by paragraphs 3 and 4 and transmit such statement to the Collector.

[S. 322D.]

Bills introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for making Laws and Regulations, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 23.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 13th March, 1908:—

NO. 2 OF 1908.

A Bill further to amend the Whipping Act, 1864, and the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898.

VI of 1864. V of 1898. WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Whipping Act, 1864, and the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. This Act may be called the Whipping (Amendment) Act, 1908.
Short title.

VI of 1864. 2. In section 2 of the Whipping Act, 1864, clauses (3), (5), (6), (7) and (8) are hereby repealed.
Repeal of portion of section 2, Act VI, 1864.

3. For sections 3, 4 and 4A of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—
Substitution of new section for sections 3, 4 and 4A of same Act.

Offences punishable with whipping in lieu of or in addition to other punishment.

"3. Whoever—

(a) abets, commits or attempts to commit, rape as defined in section 375 of the Indian Penal Code, XLV of 1860.

(b) voluntarily causes hurt in committing or in attempting to commit robbery as defined in section 390 of the said Code,

(c) commits dacoity as defined in section 391 of the said Code, may be punished with whipping in lieu of or in addition to any other punishment to which he may for such offence, abetment or attempt be liable under the said Code."

Amendment of section 5 of same Act.

4. In section 5 of the said Act the words "falling under clause (b)" are hereby repealed.

5. In section 6 of the said Act, for the words "any of the offences specified in section 4 of this Act" the words "any offence punishable under the Indian Penal Code with imprisonment for three years or upwards" shall be substituted.
Amendment of section 6 of same Act.

6. In section 32 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, the words "Whipping (if specially empowered)" and sub-section (3) are hereby repealed.
Amendment of section 32, Act V, 1898. V of 1898.

7. To section 392, sub-section (2), of the said Code the words "and, in the case of a person under sixteen years of age, it shall not exceed fifteen stripes" shall be added.
Amendment of section 392, Act V, 1898.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to amend the law relating to the punishment of whipping so as to restrict the classes of offences for which that punishment may be inflicted and to limit the number of officers who may be empowered to award it.

Clause 2.—This clause repeals clauses (3), (5), (6), (7) and (8) of section 2 of the Whipping Act, 1864. The result of these repeals will be to abolish whipping for theft by a clerk or servant and all kinds of extortion and receiving stolen property.

Clause 3.—This clause repeals sections 3, 4 and 4A of the same Act and enacts a new section 3. The effect of the repeal of the existing section 3 is to exclude whipping as an additional punishment on second conviction, while the new section 3, which takes the place of the existing sections 4 and 4A, limits the offences punishable with whipping in lieu of or in addition to other punishments to—

- (a) rape, abetment of rape and attempt to commit rape,
- (b) voluntarily causing hurt in committing or in attempting to commit robbery, and
- (c) dacoity.

Clause 4.—By this clause the words "falling under clause (b)", contained in the proviso to section 5 of the same Act, are repealed. The repeal of these words will enable the Governor General in Council to exempt juvenile offenders from the punishment of whipping in respect of any offence which is punishable under the Indian Penal Code otherwise than with death, and not merely, as at present, in respect of offences punishable under any other law with imprisonment.

Clause 5.—The amendment made by this clause in section 6 of the same Act, which deals with the infliction of the punishment of whipping in Frontier Districts, is merely consequential on the amendment of the law proposed in clause 3 as above described.

Clause 6.—This clause repeals the provisions contained in section 32 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, enabling the Local Government to empower second class Magistrates to pass sentences of whipping.

Clause 7.—This clause amends sub-section (2) of section 392 of the same Code by adding words limiting the punishment of whipping in the case of persons under sixteen years of age to fifteen stripes.

PART V.

Bills introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for making Laws and Regulations, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 23.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law for the Limitation of Suits, and for other purposes, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and regulations on the 20th March, 1908 ;—

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to consolidate and amend the Law for the Limitation of Suits, and for other purposes was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the appendix, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

2. This Bill does not purport to be a general amendment of the law of limitation and we have not treated it in that sense. The objects of it are to consolidate the law, which at present is scattered throughout a series of enactments, to clear up some points of doubt on which conflicts exist between the various High Courts, to make some amendments which are ancillary to the Code of Civil Procedure Bill lately passed by Council, and to remove the hardship caused by a recent decision of the Privy Council in regard to the period of limitation for certain suits on mortgages. The criticisms on the Bill raise a number of other points and make various suggestions for wider reforms, but we have rejected these criticisms and confined ourselves to the objects stated.

3. In the notes on clauses in the following paragraph we have dealt with the amendment of the law contained in the Bill as circulated for opinion, but there are two points on which after the fullest consideration we suggest further amendment and to them we desire to invite particular attention. The first of them relates to clause 6 of the Bill, which corresponds with section 7 of the existing Act. Under that clause a minor is entitled to claim the benefit of his minority in respect of any application and he can make an application on attaining his majority in any matter whatever. In our opinion this provision leads to great hardship. It is possible for a minor to make an application to set aside a sale in execution of a decree or an order for abatement twenty years after the occurrence and this although he has been represented by a guardian ad litem at the time of the sale or abatement. We think that this clause should be limited to applications for the execution of decrees, and that in regard to other applications the minor should be bound by the acts of his representatives. The same observation applies to clause 7. We desire to point out in this connection that in regard to those applications which are now governed by periods of limitation enacted in the Code of Civil Procedure, minors cannot at the present time claim the benefit of this section. These provisions have now been removed from the Code of Civil Procedure to this Bill. It is clear that in regard to those applications the minor ought not to have the benefit of this clause and we can see no distinction between applications in this respect. The second point arises in regard to clause 14. There is a conflict of opinion as to whether misjoinder of parties or of causes of action is a "cause of a like nature" with defect of jurisdiction within the meaning of this clause. There is much to be said for the view that there is a distinction between defects of jurisdiction and misjoinder of parties or of causes of action; but on the whole we think that the clause should be extended to cover these latter cases, and we have inserted an explanation for that purpose.

4. We have somewhat re-arranged the clauses in order to preserve the existing numbering.

CLAUSES.

Clause 2.—We have omitted sub-clause 6; the definition of moveable property contained in it has been objected to, and we think on the whole that it should be omitted.

Clause 3.—The illustrations have been omitted. We think that they are not necessary, and are liable to misconstruction.

Clause 5.—It has been suggested that the scope of clause 5 should be enlarged, and a doubt has been expressed by high authority as to whether the expression "Code of Civil Procedure" would include rules which may be made under it. We have accordingly altered this clause so as to make its provisions extend to applications for leave to appeal and to all applications to which it may be made applicable by "any enactment or rule for the time being in force."

Clause 6 of the Bill as introduced is, in our opinion, merely explanatory of clause 5; we have accordingly omitted the former and embodied its purport in an explanation to the latter clause.

Clauses 6, 7 and 8.—We have already referred to the principal alteration we have made in clauses 6 and 7.

Adopting a suggestion of the Chief Justice of Bombay we have slightly altered the language of clause 7 so as to bring it more into conformity with that of clause 6.

Clause 12 (2).—We have struck out the words "as a pauper" from this sub-clause so as to make its provisions applicable to all applications for leave to appeal.

Clause 14.—We have re-drafted sub-clause (2) so as to bring it into line with sub-clause (1), and have made Explanation II more comprehensive.

We have added Explanation III to remove the conflict to which we have referred to above.

Clause 15.—We have altered clause 18 of the Bill as introduced so as to allow the period of notice to be excluded in the case of all suits of which notice is required to be given by any enactment for the time being in force, and we have brought it up as sub-clause (2) to clause 15.

Clause 16.—We have enlarged the scope of this clause. The right to apply to set aside an execution sale is not limited to the judgment-debtor.

Clause 19.—We have struck out the words in italics; we think that the object with which they were inserted would be better carried out by the explanation which we have added.

We have struck out the words "according to the nature of the original liability" in sub-clause (1) as unnecessary and added the words "subject to the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872" in sub-clause (2) to remove a conflict.

Clause 20.—We have omitted the words "according to the nature of the original liability."

Clause 24.—We have struck out illustration (b).

Clause 31.—We have re-drafted this clause so as to make its provisions of wider application. We think it will now be found to provide for all the classes of cases which have been brought to our notice.

SCHEDULE I.

We approve of the proposal to omit Articles 34 and 35 of the Second Schedule of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877.

Article 34 provides for suits for the recovery of a wife; we fully agree in the opinion expressed by the Special Committee on the Civil Procedure Code that there can be under the law no such decree as a decree for the recovery of a wife, and there would be no point in providing a period of limitation for a suit for that purpose.

Article 35 provides for suits for the restitution of conjugal rights.

After giving the matter our best consideration we have arrived at the conclusion that this article should also be omitted. The High Court of Allahabad and the Chief Court of the Punjab hold that these suits are not subject to any rule of limitation on the ground, amongst others, that the withholding of conjugal rights is to be regarded as a continuing wrong within the meaning of section 23 of the Act, while the Bombay High Court, whose view has been adopted by the High Courts of Calcutta and Madras, has applied the bar of limitation on the ground that the specific provisions of this article must be taken to override the general provisions of section 23. The omission of the article would remove this conflict.

Suits for the restitution of conjugal rights brought under the Indian Divorce Act are not governed by any rule of limitation, and we can see no reason why similar suits brought under any other law should be differently treated in this respect.

Article 99.—We have omitted the explanation.

Article 109.—We have struck out from the third column all the words except “when the profits are received”. Those words refer to suits for restitution consequential on the reversal of a decree and would no longer be needed as the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, provides that no suit would lie to claim such restitution.

Article 116.—We have restored the Article of the present Act.

Article 118.—We have not attempted to remove the conflict which exists as to the construction of this article, and we have thought it right not to make any alteration in it. We have accordingly struck out the words proposed to be added in the third column.

Article 134.—The word “purchase” in this article has been held to include mortgages and leases. We have used the general word “transfer” in its place.

Article 138.—We think that the starting point for the running of time should be the date when the sale becomes absolute; the purchaser would not be in a position to sue for possession before that date.

Article 153.—We understand that an application for a certificate that a case is a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council is in ordinary legal language spoken of as an application for leave to appeal. We have used the expression leave to appeal in this article and elsewhere to include this meaning.

Article 163.—This article has been re-drafted so as to include certain provisions relating to limitation which have been removed from the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.

Articles 164, 169.—In these two articles we have altered the time from which the period would begin to run.

Under the Code of Civil Procedure a defendant or a respondent against whom a decree has been passed ex parte may have it set aside either on the ground that the summons in the suit or the notice of appeal had not been duly served on him or on the ground that he had sufficient cause for not appearing on the day fixed for trial. We think that in cases where a person claims to have a decree passed against him set aside notwithstanding that the summons or notice was duly served on him, time should run against him from the date of the decree and that where there has been no due service of summons or notice, time ought not to run against him until he has knowledge of the decree.

We have added a new article No. 180 incorporating certain provisions as to limitation which have been removed from the Code of Civil Procedure Bill.

No. II.

The bracketted marginal references relate to sections of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877.

A Bill to consolidate and amend the law for the Limitation of Suits, and for other purposes.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to the limitation of suits, appeals and certain applications to Courts; and whereas it is also expedient to provide rules for acquiring by possession the ownership of easements and other property; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PART I.

PRELIMINARY.

[S. 1.] 1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Short title, extent Limitation Act, 1908. and commencement.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India; and

(3) This section and section 31 shall come into force at once. The rest of this Act shall come into force on the first day of January, 1909.*

[S. 3.] 2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or Definitions. context,—

(1) "applicant" includes any person from or through whom an applicant derives his right to apply:

(2) "bill of exchange" includes a hundi and a cheque:

(3) "bond" includes any instrument whereby a person obliges himself to pay money to another, on condition that the obligation shall be void if a specified act is performed, or is not performed, as the case may be:

(4) "defendant" includes any person from or through whom a defendant derives his liability to be sued:

(5) "easement" includes a right, not arising from contract, by which one person is entitled to remove and appropriate for his own profit any part of the soil belonging to another or anything growing in, or attached to, or subsisting upon, the land of another:

(6) "foreign country" means any country other than British India:

(7) "good faith": nothing shall be deemed to be done in good faith which is not done with due care and attention:

* This is the date proposed for the commencement of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.

(8) "plaintiff" includes any person from or through whom a plaintiff derives his right to sue:

(9) "promissory note" means any instrument whereby the maker engages absolutely to pay a specified sum of money to another at a time therein limited, or on demand, or at sight:

(10) "suit" does not include an appeal or an application:

(11) "trustee" does not include a benami-dar, a mortgagee remaining in possession after the mortgage has been satisfied, or a wrong-doer in possession without title.

PART II.

LIMITATION OF SUITS, APPEALS AND APPLICATIONS.

3. Subject to the provisions contained in sections 4 to 25 (inclusive), every suit instituted, appeal preferred, and application made, after the period of limitation prescribed therefor by the first schedule shall be dismissed, although limitation has not been set up as a defence. [S. 4.]

Explanation.—A suit is instituted, in ordinary cases, when the plaint is presented to the proper officer; in the case of a pauper, when his application for leave to sue as a pauper is made; and, in the case of a claim against a company which is being wound up by the Court, when the claimant first sends in his claim to the official liquidator.

4. Where the period of limitation prescribed for any suit, appeal or application expires on a day when the Court is closed, the suit, appeal or application may be instituted, preferred or made on the day that the Court re-opens. [S. 5, para. 1.]

5. Any appeal or application for a review of judgment or for leave to appeal or any other application to which this section may be made applicable by any enactment or rule for the time being in force may be admitted after the period of limitation prescribed therefor, when the appellant or applicant satisfies the Court that he had sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal or making the application within such period. [S. 5, para. 1.]

The Indian Limitation Bill.(Part II.—Limitation of Suits, Appeals and Applications.)

[S. 5A.] Explanation.—The fact that the appellant or applicant was misled by any order, practice or judgment of the High Court in ascertaining or computing the prescribed period of limitation may be sufficient cause within the meaning of this section.

[S. 7.] 6. (1) Where a person entitled to institute a suit or make an application for the execution of a decree is, at the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned, a minor, or insane, or an idiot, he may institute the suit or make the application within the same period after the disability has ceased, as would otherwise have been allowed from the time prescribed therefor in the third column of the first schedule.

(2) Where such person is, at the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned, affected by two such disabilities, or where, before his disability has ceased, he is affected by another disability, he may institute the suit or make the application within the same period, after both disabilities have ceased, as would otherwise have been allowed from the time so prescribed.

(3) Where the disability continues up to the death of such person, his legal representative may institute the suit or make the application within the same period after the death as would otherwise have been allowed from the time so prescribed.

(4) Where such representative is at the date of the death affected by any such disability, the rules contained in sub-sections (1) and (2) shall apply.

Illustrations.

(a) The right to sue for the hire of a boat accrues to A during his minority. He attains majority four years after such accrual. He may institute his suit at any time within three years from the date of his attaining majority.

(b) A right to sue accrues to Z during his minority. After the accrual, but while Z is still a minor, he becomes insane. Time runs against Z from the date when his insanity and minority cease.

(c) A right to sue accrues to X during his minority. X dies before attaining majority, and is succeeded by Y, his minor son. Time runs against Y from the date of his attaining majority.

[S. 8.] 7. Where one of several persons jointly entitled to institute a suit or make an application for the execution of a decree is under any such disability, and a discharge can be given without the concurrence of such person, time will run against them all: but, where no such discharge can be given, time will not run as against any of them until one of them becomes capable of giving such discharge without the concurrence of the others or until the disability has ceased.

Illustrations.

(a) A incurs a debt to a firm of which B, C and D are partners. B is insane, and C is a minor. D can give a discharge of the debt without the concurrence of B and C. Time runs against B, C and D.

(b) A incurs a debt to a firm of which E, F and G are partners. E and F are insane, and G is a minor. Time will not run against any of them until either E or F becomes sane, or G attains majority.

8. Nothing in section 6 or in section 7 applies [S. 7, last para.] to suits to enforce rights of pre-emption, or shall be deemed to extend, for more than three years from the cessation of the disability or the death of the person affected thereby, the period within which any suit must be instituted or application made.

Illustrations.

(a) A, to whom a right to sue for a legacy has accrued during his minority, attains majority eleven years after such accrual. A has, under the ordinary law, only one year remaining within which to sue. But under section 6 and this section an extension of two years will be allowed him, making in all a period of three years from the date of his attaining majority, within which he may bring his suit.

(b) A right to sue for an hereditary office accrues to A who at the time is insane. Six years after the accrual A recovers his reason. A has six years, under the ordinary law, from the date when his insanity ceased within which to institute a suit. No extension of time will be given him under section 6 read with this section.

(c) A right to sue as landlord to recover possession from a tenant accrues to A, who is an idiot. A dies three years after the accrual, his idiocy continuing up to the date of his death. A's representative in interest has, under the ordinary law, nine years from the date of A's death within which to bring a suit. Section 6 read with this section does not extend that time, except where the representative is himself under disability when the representation devolves upon him.

9. Where once time has begun to run, no [S. 9] Continuous run- subsequent disability or inability to sue stops it:

Provided that, where letters of administration to the estate of a creditor have been granted to his debtor, the running of the time prescribed for a suit to recover the debt shall be suspended while the administration continues.

10. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore [S. 10] contained, no suit against a person in whom property has become vested in trust for any specific purpose, or against his legal representatives or assigns (not being assigns for valuable consideration), for the purpose of following in his or their hands such property, or the proceeds thereof, or for an account of such property or proceeds, shall be barred by any length of time.

- [S. 11.] II. (1) Suits instituted in British India on contracts entered into in a foreign country are subject to the rules of limitation contained in this Act.

(2) No foreign rule of limitation shall be a defence to a suit instituted in British India on a contract entered into in a foreign country, unless the rule has extinguished the contract and the parties were domiciled in such country during the period prescribed by such rule.

PART III.

COMPUTATION OF PERIOD OF LIMITATION.

- [S. 12.] 12. (1) In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit, appeal or application, the day from which such period is to be reckoned shall be excluded.

(2) In computing the period of limitation prescribed for an appeal, an application for leave to appeal and an application for a review of judgment, the day on which the judgment complained of was pronounced, and the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the decree, sentence or order appealed from or sought to be reviewed, shall be excluded.

(3) Where a decree is appealed from or sought to be reviewed, the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the judgment on which it is founded shall also be excluded.

(4) In computing the period of limitation prescribed for an application to set aside an award, the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the award shall be excluded.

- [S. 13.] 13. In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit, the time during which the defendant has been absent from British India shall be excluded.

- [S. 14.] 14. (1) In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit, the time during which the plaintiff has been prosecuting with due diligence another civil proceeding, whether in a Court of first instance or in a Court of appeal, against the defendant, shall be excluded, where the proceeding is founded upon the same cause of action and is prosecuted in good faith in a Court which, from defect of jurisdiction, or other cause of a like nature, is unable to entertain it.

(2) In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any application, the time during which the applicant has been prosecuting with due diligence another civil proceeding, whether in a Court of first instance or in a Court of appeal, against the same party for the same relief shall be excluded, where such proceeding is prosecuted in good faith in a Court which, from defect of jurisdiction, or other cause of a like nature, is unable to entertain it.

Explanation I.—In excluding the time during which a former suit or application was pending, the day on which that suit or application was instituted or made, and the day on which the proceedings therein ended, shall both be counted.

Explanation II.—For the purposes of this section, a plaintiff or an applicant resisting an appeal shall be deemed to be prosecuting a proceeding.

Explanation III.—For the purposes of this section misjoinder of parties or of causes of action shall be deemed to be a cause of a like nature with defect of jurisdiction.

15. (1) In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit or application for the execution of a decree, the institution or execution of which has been stayed by injunction or order, the time of the continuance of the injunction or order, the day on which it was issued or made, and the day on which it was withdrawn, shall be excluded. [S. 15]

(2) In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit of which notice has been given in accordance with the requirements of any enactment for the time being in force, the period of such notice shall be excluded. [New.]

16. In computing the period of limitation prescribed for a suit for possession by a purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree, the time during which a proceeding to set aside the sale has been prosecuted shall be excluded. [S. 16]

17. (1) Where a person who would, if he were living, have a right to institute a suit or make an application, dies before the right accrues, the period of limitation shall be computed from the time when there is a legal representative of the deceased capable of instituting or making such suit or application.

(2) Where a person against whom, if he were living, a right to institute a suit or make an application would have accrued dies before the right accrues, the period of limitation shall be computed from the time when there is a legal representative of the deceased against whom the plaintiff may institute or make such suit or application.

(3) Nothing in sub-sections (1) and (2) applies to suits to enforce rights of pre-emption or to suits for the possession of immoveable property or of an hereditary office.

18.] 18. Where any person having a right to institute a suit or make an application has, by means of fraud, been kept from the knowledge of such right or of the title on which it is founded, or where any document necessary to establish such right has been fraudulently concealed from him, the time limited for instituting a suit or making an application—

(a) against the person guilty of the fraud or accessory thereto, or

(b) against any person claiming through him otherwise than in good faith and for a valuable consideration, shall be computed from the time when the fraud first became known to the person injuriously affected thereby, or, in the case of the concealed document, when he first had the means of producing it or compelling its production.

S. 19.] 19. (1) Where, before the expiration of the period prescribed for a suit or application in respect of any property or right, an acknowledgment of liability in respect of such property or right has been made in writing signed by the party against whom such property or right is claimed, or by some person through whom he derives title or liability, a fresh period of limitation shall be computed from the time when the acknowledgment was so signed.

(2) Where the writing containing the acknowledgment is undated, oral evidence may be given of the time when it was signed; but, subject to the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, oral evidence of its contents shall not be received.

Explanation I.—For the purposes of this section an acknowledgment may be sufficient though it omits to specify the exact nature of the property or right, or avers that the time for payment, delivery, performance or enjoyment has not yet come, or is accompanied by a refusal to pay, deliver, perform or permit to enjoy, or is coupled with a claim to a set-off, or is addressed to a person other than the person entitled to the property or right.

Explanation II.—For the purposes of this section, "signed" means signed either personally or by an agent duly authorized in this behalf.

Explanation III.—For the purposes of this section an application for the execution of a decree or order is an application in respect of a right.

20. (1) Where interest on a debt or legacy is, before the expiration of the prescribed period, paid as such by the person liable to pay the debt or legacy, or by his agent duly authorized in this behalf, or where part of the principal of a debt is, before the expiration of the prescribed period, paid by the debtor or by his agent duly authorized in this behalf, a fresh period of limitation shall be computed from the time when the payment was made:

Provided that, in the case of part payment of the principal of a debt, the fact of the payment appears in the handwriting of the person making the same.

(2) Where mortgaged land is in the possession of the mortgagee, the produce of mortgaged receipt of the rent or produce of such land shall be deemed to be a payment for the purpose of sub-section (1).

Explanation.—Debt includes money payable under a decree or order of Court.

21. (1) The expression "agent duly authorized in this behalf", in sections 19 and 20, shall, in the case of a person under disability, include his lawful guardian, committee or manager, or an agent duly authorized by such guardian, committee or manager to sign the acknowledgment or make the payment. [New.]

(2) Nothing in the said sections renders one of several joint contractors, partners, executors or mortgagees chargeable by reason only of a written acknowledgment signed or of a payment made by, or by the agent of, any other or others of them. [S. 21.]

22. (1) Where, after the institution of a suit, a new plaintiff or defendant is substituted or added, the suit shall, as regards him, be deemed to have been instituted when he was so made a party. [S. 22, para 1.]

(2) Nothing in sub-section (1) shall apply to a case where a party is added or substituted [New.]

The Indian Limitation Bill.

(Part III.—Computation of Period of Limitation. Part IV.—Acquisition of Ownership by Possession.)

owing to an assignment or devolution of any interest during the pendency of a suit or where a plaintiff is made a defendant or a defendant is made a plaintiff.

- [S. 23.] 23. In the case of a continuing breach of contract and in the case of a continuing wrong independent of contract, a fresh period of limitation begins to run at every moment of the time during which the breach or the wrong, as the case may be, continues.

- [S. 24.] 24. In the case of a suit for compensation for an act which does not give rise to a cause of action unless some specific injury actually results therefrom, the period of limitation shall be computed from the time when the injury results.

Illustration.

A owns the surface of a field. B owns the subsoil. B digs coal thereout without causing any immediate apparent injury to the surface, but at last the surface subsides. The period of limitation in the case of a suit by A against B runs from the time of the subsidence.

- [S. 25.] 25. All instruments shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be made with reference to the Gregorian calendar.

Illustrations.

(a) A Hindu makes a promissory note bearing a Native date only, and payable four months after date. The period of limitation applicable to a suit on the note runs from the expiration of four months after date computed according to the Gregorian calendar.

(b) A Hindu makes a bond, bearing a Native date only, for the repayment of money within one year. The period of limitation applicable to a suit on the bond runs from the expiration of one year after date computed according to the Gregorian calendar.

PART IV.

ACQUISITION OF OWNERSHIP BY POSSESSION.

- [S. 26.] 26. (1) Where the access and use of light or air to and for any building have been peaceably enjoyed therewith, as an easement, and as of right, without interruption, and for twenty years, and where any way or watercourse, or the use of any water, or any other easement (whether affirmative or negative) has been peaceably and openly enjoyed by any person claiming title thereto as an easement and as of right without interruption, and for twenty years, the right to such access and use of light or air, way, watercourse, use of water, or other easement shall be absolute and indefeasible.

Each of the said periods of twenty years shall be taken to be a period ending within two years next before the institution of the suit wherein the claim to which such period relates is contested.

(2) Where the property over which a right is claimed under sub-section (1) belongs to Government, that sub-section shall be read as if for the words "twenty years" the words "sixty years" were substituted.

Explanation.—Nothing is an interruption within the meaning of this section unless, where there is an actual discontinuance of the possession or enjoyment by reason of an obstruction by the act of some person other than the claimant, and unless such obstruction is submitted to or acquiesced in for one year after the claimant has notice thereof and of the person making or authorizing the same to be made.

Illustrations.

(a) A suit is brought in 1911 for obstructing a right of way. The defendant admits the obstruction, but denies the right of way. The plaintiff proves that the right was peaceably and openly enjoyed by him, claiming title thereto as an easement and as of right, without interruption from 1st January, 1890, to 1st January, 1910. The plaintiff is entitled to judgment.

(b) In a like suit the plaintiff shows that the right was peaceably and openly enjoyed by him for twenty years. The defendant proves that the plaintiff, on one occasion during the twenty years, had asked his leave to enjoy the right. The suit shall be dismissed.

27. Where any land or water upon, over or from which any easement has been enjoyed or derived has been held under or by virtue of any interest for life or any term of years exceeding three years from the granting thereof, the time of the enjoyment of such easement during the continuance of such interest or term shall be excluded in the computation of the period of twenty years in case the claim is, within three years next after the determination of such interest or term, resisted by the person entitled, on such determination, to the said land or water.

Illustration.

A sues for a declaration that he is entitled to a right of way over B's land. A proves that he has enjoyed the right for twenty-five years; but B shows that during ten of these years C, a Hindu widow, had a life interest in the land, that on C's death B became entitled to the land, and that within two years after C's death he contested A's claim to the right. The suit must be dismissed, as A, with reference to the provisions of this section, has only proved enjoyment for fifteen years.

28.] 8. At the determination of the period hereby Extinguishment of limited to any person for right to property. instituting a suit for possession of any property, his right to such property shall be extinguished.

PART V.

of 1872. shall—

(a) affect the Indian Contract Act, 1872, section 25;

appeal or application by any special

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 20th March, 1908 :—

No. 3 OF 1908.

A Bill to give greater facilities to the Public for calling for and inspecting Accounts of Public Charities.

WHEREAS it is expedient to give greater facilities to the public for calling for and inspecting accounts of public charities; It is hereby enacted as follows:

1. (1) This Act may be called the Public Charities Accounts Act, 1908.
Short title, extent and commencement.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, except the Scheduled Districts; and

(3) It shall come into force

2. In the case of any express or constructive trust created for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature, any Court having jurisdiction to try a suit under section 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, in respect of such trust, may, on the application of any two or more persons who have an interest in the trust and have obtained the consent in writing of the Advocate General to the making of such application, by order direct any trustee of such trust to cause to be prepared and filed in the Court within such time as may be specified in the order a detailed account of the receipts and disbursements in connection with the trust property for a period not exceeding three years next preceding the date of the application.

3. A copy of the order signed by the Judge or such officer as he appoints in this behalf and sealed with the seal of the Court shall be served on the trustee in such manner as the Court may direct.

4. Accounts filed in Court in pursuance of an order made under section 2 shall be open to inspection by the public.

5. Where a trustee fails to comply with an order duly made and served under the foregoing provisions, a suit for his removal on the ground of such failure may be instituted in the Court which made the order, and the Court may thereupon pass a decree for his removal unless he can show good cause for the failure.

6. The power conferred by section 2 on the Advocate General may, outside the Presidency-towns, be, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, exercised by the Collector or by such officer as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of the Bill is to provide a simple procedure which would enable the public to obtain inspection of the accounts of public charities.

There is reason for suspecting that considerable portions of the revenues of these charities are misspent or squandered on useless objects. A regular inspection of accounts by the public would be an effective check upon such malpractices where they exist, and it is highly desirable in the interests of these charities to allow the public every reasonable facility for such inspection.

The Bill does not impose any new duty on trustees of public charities. The law as it stands gives sufficient powers to the Courts to direct accounts when once a suit has been instituted. The duty of keeping proper accounts, however, is not always observed by such trustees, and experience has shown that this duty is likely to be neglected unless the members of the public who are interested in the charity concerned are allowed the means of calling for and inspecting accounts without undertaking the burden of a suit.

The Bill by requiring the previous consent of the Advocate General or some officer specially empowered by the Local Government provides ample safeguard against its provisions being utilized for any indirect or other improper purpose.

[S. 25.] (3) Where any part of the property of the insolvent consists of stock, shares in ships, shares or any other property transferable in the books of any company, office or person, the official assignee may exercise the right to transfer the property to the same extent as the insolvent might have exercised it if he had not become insolvent.

(4) Where any part of the property of the insolvent consists of things in action, such things shall be deemed to have been duly assigned to the official assignee.

(5) Any treasurer or other officer, or any banker, attorney or agent of an insolvent, shall pay and deliver to the official assignee all money and securities in his possession or power, as such officer, banker, attorney or agent, which he is not by law entitled to retain as against the insolvent or the official assignee. If he fails so to do, he shall be guilty of a contempt of Court, and shall be punishable accordingly on the application of the official assignee.

47. Any person acting under warrant of the Court may seize any part of the property of an insolvent in the custody or possession of the insolvent or of any other person, and with a view to such seizure may break open any house, building or room of the insolvent where the insolvent is supposed to be, or any building or receptacle of the insolvent where any of his property is supposed to be; and, where the Court is satisfied that there is reason to believe that property of the insolvent is concealed in a house or place not belonging to him, the Court may, if it thinks fit, grant a search-warrant to any police officer or officer of the Court, who may execute it according to its tenor.

Provided that, where any such property shall not have come to the knowledge of the official assignee within one month after such adjudication as aforesaid, it shall be lawful for him to disclaim the property at any time within six months after he shall first have become aware thereof.

(2) The disclaimer shall operate to determine, as from the date thereof, the rights, interests and liabilities of the insolvent-debtor and his property in or in respect of the property disclaimed, and shall also discharge the official assignee from all personal liability in respect of the property disclaimed as from the date when the property shall have vested in him, but shall not, except so far as is necessary for the purpose of releasing the insolvent and his property and the official assignee from liability, affect the rights or liabilities of any other person.

(3) Subject always to such rules as may be made in this behalf, the official assignee shall not be entitled to disclaim any leasehold interest without the leave of the Court; and it shall be lawful for the Court, before or on granting such leave, to require such notices to be given to persons interested, and to impose such terms as a condition of granting leave, and to make such orders with respect to fixtures, tenant's improvements and other matters arising out of the tenancy, as the Court shall think just.

(4) Any person injured by the operation of a disclaimer under this section shall be deemed to be a creditor of the insolvent to the amount of the injury, and may accordingly prove the same as a debt under the insolvency.

(i) divide in its existing form amongst the creditors, according to its estimated value, any property which, from its peculiar nature or other special circumstances, cannot readily or advantageously be sold:

Provided that the Court may, upon the application of any insolvent or of the official assignee, or of any creditor or mortgagee of the insolvent, delay or postpone the sale or distribution of any property and make such other order regarding the same as it shall think fit.

(2) The first dividend (if any) shall be declared and be distributed within six months after the adjudication, unless the official assignee satisfies the Court that there is sufficient reason for postponing the declaration to a later date.

(3) Subsequent dividends shall, in the absence of sufficient reason to the contrary, be declared and be payable at intervals of not more than six months.

53. (1) Where one member of a partnership is adjudged insolvent, a creditor to whom the insolvent is indebted jointly with the other members of the partnership or any of them shall not receive any dividend out of the separate property of the insolvent until all the separate creditors have received the full amount of their respective debts.

(2) Where joint and separate properties are being administered, dividends of the joint and separate properties shall, subject to any order to the contrary that may be made by the Court on the application of the official assignee or any person interested, be declared together; and the expenses of and incident to those dividends shall be fairly apportioned by the official assignee between the joint and separate properties, regard being had to the work done for and to the benefit received by each property.

failed to receive, before that money is applied to the payment of any future dividend or dividends, but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before his debt was proved by reason that he has not participated therein.

56. When the official assignee has realised all the property of the insolvent, or so much thereof as

Vict., c. 52,
s. 62;
Act III, 1907,

can, in his opinion, be realised without needlessly protracting the proceedings in insolvency, he shall, with the leave of the Court, declare a final dividend; but, before so doing, he shall give notice in manner prescribed to the persons whose claims to be creditors have been notified to him, but not proved that, if they do not prove their claims, to the satisfaction of the Court, within the time limited by the notice, he will proceed to make a final dividend, without regard to their claims. After the expiration of the time so limited, or, if the Court on application by any such claimant grants him further time for establishing his claim, then on the expiration of that further time, the property of the insolvent shall be divided among the creditors who have proved their debts, without regard to the claims of any other persons.

57. No suit for a dividend shall lie against the official assignee, but, where the official assignee refuses to pay any dividend, the Court may, on the application of any creditor who has proved his debt, order him to pay it, and also to pay out of his own money interest thereon at such rate as may be prescribed for the time that it is withheld, and the costs of the application.

[S. 50.] 86. In case it shall appear to the Court that any insolvent has fraudulently, with the intent to conceal the state of his affairs or to defeat the objects of this Act, destroyed or otherwise wilfully prevented or purposely withheld the production of any book, paper or writing relating to such of his affairs as are subject to investigation under this Act, or kept or caused to be kept false books, or made false entries in, or withheld entries from, or wilfully altered or falsified, any such book, paper or writing, or that such insolvent has fraudulently, with intent of diminishing the sum to be divided among his creditors or of giving an undue preference to any of the said creditors, discharged or concealed any debt due to or from the said insolvent, or made away with, changed, mortgaged or concealed any part of his property, of what kind soever,

the Court shall have power to adjudge that the insolvent shall be imprisoned for a period or periods not exceeding two years in the whole, as the Court shall direct, and to declare him entitled to his discharge as aforesaid at the expiration of the term of imprisonment to which he shall be sentenced, and by warrant under the seal of the Court to order him to be arrested and committed to prison, and there to be detained accordingly.

87. Where the Court has reason to believe that an insolvent or any other person has committed an offence under this Act or under sections 421 to 424 of the Indian Penal Code, the Court, after making any preliminary enquiry that may be necessary, may send the case for inquiry or trial to a Magistrate, and may send the accused in custody or take sufficient security for his appearance before such Magistrate, and may bind over any person to appear and give evidence on such trial.

PART VIII.

88. When a petition is presented by or against a debtor, if the Court is satisfied by affidavit or otherwise, or the official assignee reports to the Court, that the property of the debtor is not likely to exceed in value three thousand rupees or such other amount as may be prescribed, the Court may make an order that the debtor's estate be administered in a summary manner, and thereupon the provisions of this Act shall be subject to the following modifications, namely:—

- no appeal shall lie from any order of the Court, except by leave of the Court;
- the estate shall, where practicable, be distributed in a single dividend;
- such other modifications may be made in the provisions of this Act as may be prescribed with the view of saving expense and simplifying procedure:

Provided that nothing in this section shall permit the modification of the provisions of this Act relating to the examination or discharge of the debtor.

PART IX.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS.

89. No insolvency petition shall be presented against any corporation or against any association or company registered under any enactment for the time being in force.

The Presidency-towns Insolvency Bill.(Part IX.—Special Provisions. Part X.—Rules.)[46 & 47
Vict., c. 52,
s. 125.]

90. (1) Any creditor of a deceased debtor whose debt would have been sufficient to support an insolvency petition against the debtor, had he been alive, may present to the Court a petition in the prescribed form praying for an order for the administration of the estate of the deceased debtor according to the law of insolvency.

(2) Upon the prescribed notice being given to the executor, administrator or other legal representative of the deceased debtor, the Court may in the prescribed manner, upon proof of the petitioner's debt, unless the Court is satisfied that there is a reasonable probability that the estate will be sufficient for the payment of the debts owing by the deceased, make an order for the administration in insolvency of the deceased debtor's estate, or may upon cause shown dismiss the petition with or without costs.

(3) An order of administration under this section shall not, in cases where a grant of probate or administration is required to establish a title as legal representative, be made until the expiration of two months from the date of the grant of probate or letters of administration, unless with the concurrence of the legal representative of the deceased debtor, or unless the petitioner proves to the satisfaction of the Court that the debtor committed an act of insolvency within three months prior to his decease.

(4) A petition for administration under this section shall not be presented to the Court after proceedings have been commenced in any Court of Justice for the administration of the deceased debtor's estate; but that Court may in that case, on the application of any creditor, and on proof that the estate is insufficient to pay its debts, transfer the proceedings to the Court exercising jurisdiction in insolvency, and thereupon the last-mentioned Court may, in the prescribed manner, make an order for the administration of the estate of the deceased debtor, and the like consequences shall ensue as under an administration order made on the petition of a creditor.

(5) Upon an order being made for the administration of a deceased debtor's estate under this section, the property of the debtor shall vest in the official assignee of the Court, and he shall forthwith proceed to realize and distribute the same in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

(6) With the modifications hereinafter mentioned, all the provisions of Part III, relating to the administration of the property of an insolvent, shall, so far as the same are applicable, apply to the case of an administration order under this section in like manner as to an order of adjudication under this Act.

(7) In the administration of the property of the deceased debtor under an order of administration, the official assignee shall have regard to any claims by the legal representative of the deceased debtor to payment of the proper funeral and testamentary expenses incurred by him in and about the debtor's estate; and those claims shall be deemed a preferential debt under the order, and be payable in full, out of the debtor's estate, in priority to all other debts.

(8) If, on the administration of a deceased debtor's estate, any surplus remains in the hands of the official assignee after payment in full of all the debts due from the debtor, together with the costs of the administration and interest as provided by this Act in case of insolvency, such surplus shall be paid over to the legal representative of the deceased debtor's estate, or dealt with in such other manner as may be prescribed.

(9) Notice to the legal representative of a deceased debtor of the presentation by a creditor of a petition under this section shall, in the event of an order for administration being made thereon, be deemed to be equivalent to notice of an act of bankruptcy, and after the notice no payment or transfer of property made by the legal representative shall operate as a discharge to him as between himself and the official assignee. Save as aforesaid, nothing in this section shall invalidate any payment made or act or thing done in good faith by the legal representative before the date of the order for administration.

(10) General rules, for carrying into effect the provisions of this section, may be made in the same manner and to the like effect and extent as in insolvency.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, the expression "Court" shall, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context, be deemed to mean the Court exercising jurisdiction in insolvency within the local limits of the jurisdiction of which the debtor resided or carried on business for the greater part of the six months immediately prior to his decease; and "creditor" means one or more creditors qualified to present an insolvency petition as in this Act provided.

THE FIRST SCHEDULE.

(See section 36.)

PROOF OF DEBTS.

Proofs in ordinary cases.

[46 & 47 Vict., c. 52, Sch. II.] 1. Every creditor shall prove his debt as soon as may be after the making of an order of adjudication.

2. A debt may be proved by delivering or sending by post in a registered letter to the official assignee an affidavit verifying the debt.

3. The affidavit may be made by the creditor himself or by some person authorised by or on behalf of the creditor. If made by a person so authorised, it shall state his authority and means of knowledge.

4. The affidavit shall contain or refer to a statement of account showing the particulars of the debt, and shall specify the vouchers, if any, by which the same can be substantiated. The official assignee may at any time call for the production of the vouchers.

5. The affidavit shall state whether the creditor is or is not a secured creditor.

6. A creditor shall bear the cost of proving his debt unless the Court otherwise specially orders.

7. Every creditor who has lodged a proof shall be entitled to see and examine the proofs of other creditors at all reasonable times.

8. A creditor proving his debt shall deduct therefrom all trade discounts, but he shall not be compelled to deduct any discount, not exceeding five per centum on the net amount of his claim, which he may have agreed to allow for payment in cash.

Proof by secured creditors.

9. If a secured creditor realises his security, he may prove for the balance due to him, after deducting the net amount realised.

10. If a secured creditor surrenders his security to the official assignee for the general benefit of the creditors, he may prove for his whole debt.

11. If a secured creditor does not either realise or surrender his security, he shall, before ranking for dividend, state, in his proof the particulars of his security, the date when it was given and the value at which he assesses it, and shall be entitled to receive a dividend only in respect of the balance due to him after deducting the value so assessed.

12. (1) Where a security is so valued the official assignee may at any time redeem it on payment to the creditor of the assessed value.

(2) If the official assignee is dissatisfied with the value at which a security is assessed, he may require that the property comprised in any security so valued be offered for sale at such times and on such terms and conditions as may be agreed on between the creditor and the official assignee, or as, in default of agreement, the Court may direct. If the sale is by public auction, the creditor, or the official assignee on behalf of the estate, may bid or purchase:

The Presidency-towns Insolvency Bill.(The First Schedule.—Proof of Debts.)

Provided that the creditor may at any time, by notice in writing, require the official assignee to elect whether he will or will not exercise his power of redeeming the security or requiring it to be realised, and if the official assignee does not, within six months after receiving the notice, signify in writing to the creditor his election to exercise the power, he shall not be entitled to exercise it; and the equity of redemption, or any other interest in the property comprised in the security which is vested in the official assignee, shall vest in the creditor, and the amount of his debt shall be reduced by the amount at which the security has been valued.

13. Where a creditor has so valued his security, he may at any time amend the valuation and proof on showing to the satisfaction of the official assignee, or the Court, that the valuation and proof were made bonâ fide on a mistaken estimate, or that the security has diminished or increased in value since its previous valuation; but every such amendment shall be made at the cost of the creditor, and upon such terms as the Court shall order, unless the official assignee shall allow the amendment without application to the Court.

14. Where a valuation has been amended in accordance with the foregoing rule, the creditor shall forthwith repay any surplus dividend which he has received in excess of that to which he would have been entitled on the amended valuation, or, as the case may be, shall be entitled to be paid out of any money for the time being available for dividend any dividend or share of dividend which he has failed to receive by reason of the inaccuracy of the original valuation, before that money is made applicable to the payment of any future dividend, but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before the date of the amendment.

15. If a creditor after having valued his security subsequently realises it, or if it is realised under the provisions of rule 12, the net amount realised shall be substituted for the amount of any valuation previously made by the creditor and shall be treated in all respects as an amended valuation made by the creditor.

16. If a secured creditor does not comply with the foregoing rules he shall be excluded from all share in any dividend.

17. Subject to the provisions of rule 12, a creditor shall in no case receive more than sixteen annas in the rupee and interest as provided by this Act.

Proof in respect of distinct contracts.

18. If an insolvent was at the date of the order of adjudication liable in respect of distinct contracts as a member of two or more distinct firms, or as a sole contractor and also as member of a firm, the circumstance that the firms are in whole or in part composed of the same individuals or that the sole contractor is also one of the joint contractors shall not prevent proof in respect of the contracts against the properties respectively liable on the contracts.

Periodical payments.

19. When any rent or other payment falls due at stated periods, and the order of adjudication is made at any time other than one of those periods, the person entitled to the rent or payment may prove for a proportionate part thereof up to the date of the order as if the rent or payment grew due from day to day.

Interest.

20. (1) On any debt or sum certain whereon interest is not reserved or agreed for, and which is overdue when the debtor is adjudged an insolvent, and which is provable under this Act, the creditor may prove for interest at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum—

- (a) if the debt or sum is payable by virtue of a written instrument at a certain time, from the time when such debt or sum was payable to the date of such adjudication; or,
- (b) if the debt or sum is payable otherwise, from the time when a demand in writing has been made giving the debtor notice that interest will be claimed from the date of the demand until the time of payment to the date of such adjudication.

(2) Where a debt which has been proved in [Act III, 1907 insolventy includes interest or any pecuniary s. 32 (2).] consideration in lieu of interest, the interest or consideration shall, for the purposes of dividend, be calculated at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum, without prejudice to the right of a creditor to receive out of the debtor's estate any higher rate of interest to which he may be entitled after all the debts proved have been paid in full.

Debt payable at a future time.

21. A creditor may prove for a debt not payable when the debtor is adjudged an insolvent as if it were payable presently, and may receive dividends equally with the other creditors, deducting therefrom only a rebate of interest at the rate of six per centum per annum computed from the declaration of a dividend to the time when the debt would have become payable, according to the terms on which it was contracted.

The Presidency-towns Insolvency Bill.(The First Schedule.—Proof of Debts. The Second Schedule.—Enactments Repealed.)Admission or rejection of proofs.

22. The official assignee shall examine every proof and the grounds of the debt, and in writing admit or reject it in whole or in part, or require further evidence in support of it. If he rejects a proof, he shall state in writing to the creditor the grounds of the rejection.

23. If the official assignee thinks that a proof has been improperly admitted, the Court may, on the application of the official assignee, after notice to the creditor who made the proof, expunge the proof or reduce its amount.

24. If a creditor is dissatisfied with the decision of the official assignee in respect of a proof, the Court may, on the application of the creditor, reverse or vary the decision.

25. The Court may also expunge or reduce a proof upon the application of a creditor if the official assignee declines to interfere in the matter, or, in the case of a composition or scheme, upon the application of the insolvent.

26. For the purpose of any of his duties in relation to proofs, the official assignee may administer oaths and take affidavits.

1848	11 & 12 Vict., c. 21.	The Indian Insolvency Act, 1848.	Ditto.
1898	X	The Indian Insolvency Rules Act, 1898.	Sections 2 and 3.
1908	V	The Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.	Section 120, subsection (1).

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to amend the Law of Insolvency in force in the Presidency-towns and in the town of Rangoon. That law is at present contained in the Indian Insolvency Act of 1848 (11 & 12 Vict., c. 21), a statute framed on the same lines as the English Acts before 1869. Those Acts were long since found inadequate in England; they were superseded by the Bankruptcy Act of 1869 and the law was again recast and re-enacted by the existing Act of 1883. In India, however, no amendment has been made, although for many years past it has been generally admitted that the present Act is altogether out of date and ineffective.

2. As long ago as 1870 Sir James Stephen introduced a Bill to repeal the existing law and to substitute for it an Insolvency Law based on the English Bankruptcy Act of 1869. This Bill was applicable to the whole of India. It was considered to be too complicated for the Mufassal, and was withdrawn. In 1883 the present Bankruptcy Act was passed in England and Sir C. Ilbert proposed to the Government of India to introduce a Bill, based on the lines of that Act, to supersede the Statute of 1848. The proposal to pass an entirely new enactment met with general approval. It was supported by the various Chambers of Commerce and by the High Courts, accepted by the Government of India and approved by the Secretary of State. A Bill was drafted accordingly and was introduced in the Legislative Council at Simla on the 20th May, 1886. This Bill followed with some exactness the English Act and contained provisions taken from that Act which were commonly thought to go somewhat beyond the needs of India. For some reason it was not immediately proceeded with; indeed, no further step was taken until 1899, when the Bill was referred to a Select Committee, who reported that as drafted it was too complicated to suit Indian conditions and advised that it should be modified. Nothing has been done since.

3. Meantime the commercial communities have not ceased to urge reform. In 1902, in commenting on the Code of Civil Procedure Bill, the Bengal Chamber of Commerce expressed their disappointment that no indication of any intended amendment of the Insolvency Law in the Presidency-towns was put forward. They observed that the necessity for a new law was increasing and that in the public interests, and particularly in the interests of the trading community, the desired amendment should not be longer delayed. Within the last year they have made a similar representation, and it cannot be doubted that their opinion is shared by the Chartered High Courts and by the representatives of commerce in the other Presidency-towns. In the last session of the Legislative Council an Act was passed dealing with insolvency in the Mufassal on modern lines, but that Act has no application to the Presidency-towns or to Rangoon.

4. The main defect of the existing law lies in the absence of any adequate powers to compel the production of assets. The primary object of the Act of 1848 was the protection of debtors: the provision it makes for the discovery of the property of insolvents is treated as of secondary importance and has long since been found insufficient to prevent fraud. The protection of honest debtors should be one of the objects of every Insolvency Law, although it is of less importance now than it was in 1848, when imprisonment for debt was more frequent. But it is equally important, in the interests of commerce, that creditors should not be defrauded and that dishonest debtors should not be able to make use of insolvency proceedings merely to free themselves from their liabilities while preserving their assets more or less intact.

5. The present Bill follows the general lines of the English Act, but there are important simplifications introduced to meet the different conditions of India. It continues the existing protection for debtors but, at the same time, sets up a machinery by which the whole of the assets of an insolvent should be secured for the benefit of the creditors. The details of this machinery are for consideration, but it is thought that there will be general agreement as to the desirability of a new law on the lines of the Bill.

6. The first point of substance to which it is desired to invite attention is the question of the stage at which there should be adjudication. Under the Act of 1848 adjudication takes place on the presentation of a petition. The Bill of 1886, following the English law, provided for a receiving order in the first instance, but the Committee of 1892 reported that the interposition of a receiving order, with all the legal and other complications attendant on it, between the presentation of a petition and adjudication was undesirable. This view has been adopted in the present draft; there is no provision in it for any receiving order,—adjudication is to be made, as under the existing law, on petition. This adjudication will be made as of course on all debtors' petitions and all creditors' petitions which are dropped. The Provincial Insolvency Act proceeds on an alternative course and provides for adjudication after a hearing of the petition at which the creditors may appear and cross-examine the debtor. The conditions in the Presidency-towns, however, differ from those in the Mufassal and there is less danger of adjudication being made on insufficient materials.

7. The second stage under the Bill will be a meeting of the creditors and a public examination of the debtor by the Court. These two provisions should enable the creditors to obtain full information as to the dealings of the insolvent and the assets of his estate.

8. The third and last stage will be the discharge. This cannot be granted until after the public examination of the insolvent has been concluded and may be refused or suspended if the insolvent is found to have been guilty of misconduct. An order of adjudication operates of itself to release the debtor from prison; it is no longer necessary therefore to retain the provisions of the present Act relating to applications for personal discharge.

9. Provisions have been made for compositions and schemes of arrangement which are, it is hoped, of a practical character.

10. The distinction between traders and non-traders has been abolished.

11. Under the Act there is power to appoint special assignees, but it is believed that this power has never in fact been exercised in recent years. The object of it is to secure for the creditors some control over the proceedings in insolvency, but the fact that it is not made use of appears to show that it is ineffective for that purpose. It is proposed therefore, for consideration, that the power to appoint special assignees should not be retained, but that there should be power to appoint a committee of creditors to supervise proceedings in cases in which it may be desirable to do so. This procedure is new to Indian law and for that reason it seems inexpedient, in the first instance, to define with any exactness the extent of the control which should be given to such committees. It is thought better to leave the matter to rules, in order that advantage may be taken of experience.

12. Under the English system the supervising authority for bankruptcy proceedings is the Board of Trade, but in India we have nothing corresponding to that body; powers of supervision must therefore be left to the Courts.

13. An explanation of other amendments will be found in the Notes on Clauses.

14. If this Bill be passed into law it will be necessary to repeal the 1848 Act, and this raises a question which deserves consideration. The present Act is an Act of the Imperial Parliament and a vesting order made under it vests in the assignee by direct operation all the real and personal estate and effects of the insolvent in whatever part of the King's dominions they may be situate or accrue; and a discharge under the Act has effect in every part of those dominions. The Act is one of those which it is within the competency of the Legislative Council of the Governor General to repeal, but if it be repealed and an Indian Act be substituted, it follows that these advantages must at least for the most part be abandoned, since an Act of the Indian Legislature cannot operate for this purpose outside the limits of India. In 1886 it was proposed that an Act of the Imperial Parliament should be obtained to give this authority to insolvency proceedings in India, but no such Act has as yet been passed. It is believed, however, that the advantages conferred by the Act of 1848 are of no real value, since experience has shown that in practically every case in which there are assets in both countries concurrent proceedings are instituted in England and in India. It may be that the Imperial Parliament will, at some future date, pass an enactment to give direct effect to Indian and Colonial insolvency proceedings in all parts of the Empire, but meantime it would appear that we are not surrendering any practical advantage by giving up the position we hold under the 1848 Act. In any case we cannot allow this consideration to be a perpetual bar to the reform of Insolvency Law in India.

The 19th March, 1908.

Notes on Clauses.

Clauses 1 and 2.—The title and definitions have been brought into line with the Provincial Insolvency Act.

The Bill is to all practical intents a Bankruptcy Bill, but it has been thought better for the present, at any rate, to observe the title "insolvency" with which legal practitioners in this country are familiar, both for this Bill and for the Provincial Act.

Clauses 3 and 4 represent the existing law.

Clauses 5 and 6.—These clauses give powers which it is thought will be useful; they are taken from the English Act.

Clause 7 (1) gives the Court in the exercise of insolvency jurisdiction the same powers as it has in the exercise of original civil jurisdiction.

Sub-clauses (2) and (3) are taken from the English Act.

Clause 8.—The law of appeals remains unaltered.

Clause 9.—The list of acts of insolvency has been made uniform with that in the Provincial Act and follows the English law, with one exception. It is proposed that a debtor who has allowed his property to be attached should be held to have committed an act of insolvency. It is said that one of the most favourite tricks of a fraudulent insolvent is to get rid of his property to special creditors or friends by illusive decrees or attachments and that the property once sold in this way is difficult to recover. The point is for consideration, but it may well be that it is possible to be more strict in this respect in the Presidency-towns than in the Mufassal.

Clauses 10 to 16 follow the Provincial Act and make no change of importance in the law except that to which attention has already been called, namely, that under clause 16 the adjudication of itself releases the debtor from prison. Section 13 of the Act of 1848 has been omitted for the reasons already stated.

Clause 19.—The power to appoint a special manager is one that has been suggested in connection with the Arbuthnot case.

Clause 23 provides for a general meeting of creditors to be held after the adjudication. The proceedings at the meeting will be regulated by rules. Express power has been given to the official assignee or to creditors to question the insolvent. Clause 69, sub-clause (2), gives power to the official assignee to summon subsequent meetings of creditors at any time, and compels him to do so if directed by the Court or requested in writing by one-fourth of the creditors.

Clause 24 provides for the public examination of an insolvent to which reference has already been made.

Clauses 25 and 26 deal with composition and schemes of arrangement.

Clause 27 is taken from the English Act; it sets out in full the duty of the insolvent to discover and realise his property, and empowers the Court to sentence a fraudulent insolvent to a term of imprisonment, following section 50 of the 1848 Act and section 43 (2) of Act III of 1907.

Clause 28 gives the Court power of arrest in certain circumstances.

Clause 30 gives the official assignee wider powers for the discovery of the insolvent's property. It enables the Court to order production of the books of a partnership of which the insolvent was a member—a point on which there has been some doubt.

Sub-clauses (4) and (5) go somewhat beyond the corresponding sections of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, sections 27 (4) and (5), under which the Court can only make an order when the respondent admits liability; but having regard to the facility with which in this country property can be put away, and to the fact that between examination and action the property might be made away with, it seems necessary to have a stringent provision.

Clause 31.—The system of double discharge has been abandoned and provision is made for one discharge only; the clause is in line with the corresponding section of the Provincial Act.

It is for consideration whether the limit of six annas in the rupee prescribed in sub-clause (3) (a) is not too high. In small insolvencies at least it might be desirable to reduce it. Power is therefore given to the Court to prescribe a lower limit.

Clause 33 differs from the Provincial Act inasmuch as it makes a discharge operate to free a debtor from all debts provable in insolvency. But in this it follows the existing law as to traders, and the objections to giving this wide effect to a discharge which exist in regard to the Mufassal do not have the same weight in Presidency-towns where greater publicity attaches to proceedings before the Court.

Clause 33.—It is a question whether there should be inserted after this clause a new clause disqualifying an insolvent from holding office on the lines of the corresponding provisions in the English Act. This was proposed but not adopted at the time in the Provincial Insolvency Act. It may be that it will be better that this disqualification should be inserted as opportunity offers in enactments relating to public bodies.

Clause 36.—Rules as to proof of debts have been put in the schedule following the English Act.

Clause 39.—The title of the assignee is made to relate back to presentation of the petition and not to the date of the act of insolvency. This follows the existing law and the Provincial Act, but differs from the English Act under which the title relates back to the act of insolvency.

Clauses 41 to 45.—The provisions as to the effect of insolvency on antecedent transactions follow generally the English law. The transactions referred to in clauses 41, 42 and 45 are made to stand or fall by the time of the presentation of the petition, not of adjudication, a departure from the Provincial Insolvency Act which makes the law somewhat more stringent. The limit of time within which salary or wages of clerks, servants, etc., can be recovered has been maintained at six months as in section 46 of the Act of 1848, but a limit of amount in each case of Rs. 500 is suggested.

Clauses 46 to 52 are taken from the English law and the Provincial Act.

Clause 50 is shorter than the corresponding section (55) of the English Act.

Clauses 60 to 68 sum up the position of the official assignee; the present incumbents are preserved in their office.

Clauses 74 to 84 deal with matters of procedure and are taken from the English law. The last clause gives powers for proceedings to be taken either by or against a firm in the firm's name.

Part VII: penalties: clauses 85, 87.—It appears necessary to retain section 50 of the present Act. Non-criminal failure to maintain proper books is dealt with sufficiently by clause 31 (3) (b) by suspension or refusal of discharge; the other penal sections of the present Act appear to be sufficiently covered by sections 421 to 424 of the Penal Code.

Clause 88.—It is thought that a power to summarily administer small cases will be of use.

Special provisions.—The sections of the existing Act as to married women and lunatics have been omitted. They appear to be unnecessary.

Clause 90 provides for the administration in insolvency of the estate of a person dying insolvent and is new to Indian law; it reproduces section 125 of the Act of 1883.

The Arbuthnot insolvency afforded a striking example of the necessity of this provision.

Clauses 91 and 92 give power to the Courts to make rules subject to the sanction, in the case of the Calcutta High Court of the Governor General in Council, and, in the case of the other High Courts, of the Local Governments. The provision for submitting rules for the approval of His Majesty is omitted.

It is thought that this power will enable Courts, if they so think fit, to re-enact in substance the existing rules, with such changes as may be rendered necessary by the Act. Clause 91 (2) (b) gives the Court an unlimited power of dealing with the proceeds of investments of unclaimed dividends.

Clause 95 provides for the persons before whom affidavits may be sworn; section 68 of the 1848 Act is altogether obsolete on this point.

Clauses 100 to 103 provide for dealing with unclaimed funds or dividends, on the lines of Act II of 1874, sections 62, 63.

Schedule I, as to proof of debts, is taken from Schedule II of the English Act of 1883.

PART V.

Bills introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for making Laws and Regulations, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 23.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 8th June, 1908 :

No. 5 OF 1908.

A Bill to make special provision for the payment of duty on salt in certain cases.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make special provision for the payment of duty on salt in certain cases ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Salt-Short title and extent. duties Act, 190 ; and

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

2. Where by any enactment any duty is imposed on any salt manufactured in or imported into or transported within British India, the Governor General in Council or the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules providing for the payment of such duty within a period not exceeding six months from the date on which payment is due, and for the furnishing of security for such payment ; and salt may be manufactured, imported or transported in accordance with rules so made as if the duty payable thereon had been paid.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

UNDER the credit system for the payment of duty on salt which prevails in Madras and Bombay, salt is issued to merchants without requiring them to make immediate payment of the duty ; the procedure being that they execute a bond and deposit securities and that their accounts are made up and settled periodically. The Salt Committee of 1904 recommended that a similar system should be adopted in the areas of Bengal in which there is no water communication ; and the Governments of Bengal and Eastern Bengal and Assam have expressed themselves in favour of its introduction.

2. In Madras and Bombay the system has been found of value in facilitating the distribution of salt and in reducing its price to the consumer. The Government of India consider therefore that its extension to other parts of India is desirable. They do not propose to restrict it to the areas contemplated by the Salt Committee, but would allow any Local Government to adopt the credit system within its territories, and to make the necessary rules and conditions. The present Bill has been framed to permit of this.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 8th June, 1908 :

NO. 6 OF 1908.

A Bill to amend the Local Authorities Loan Act, 1904.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Local Authorities Loan Act, 1904 ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. This Act may be called the Local Authorities Loan (Amendment) Act, 1908.
Short title.
2. In section 2 of the Local Authorities Loan Act, 1904, for the words
Amendment of section 2, "bills repayable" the words "bills or promissory notes payable" shall be substituted; and in the proviso to the same section, after the word "bills" the words "or promissory notes" shall be inserted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Local Authorities Loan Act, 1904 (III of 1904), enables certain local authorities to borrow money by means of the issue of short-term bills. In practice it has been found that the documents on which local authorities raise such loans are promissory notes in form ; and it is doubtful whether the bodies concerned are in a position to give "bills" in the ordinary banking and mercantile sense of the term. It is accordingly proposed to remove all ambiguity by providing that the local authorities to whom the Act applies may give promissory notes as security for short loans.

INDIAN LIMITATION BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. ERLE RICHARDS said:—"My Lord, the title of the Bill which I now ask leave to introduce appears to be somewhat ambitious. It is the 'Indian Limitation Act', and it might be assumed from that title that this Council was to be asked to embark on a general amendment of the Law of Limitation. I desire at the outset to make it clear that there is no such intention. The Bill is intended primarily to remedy a hardship caused by a recent decision of the Privy Council to which I will return in a moment; to make some amendments ancillary to the Code of Civil Procedure Bill which is now before this Council and which, it is hoped, will be shortly passed into law; and in addition to amalgamate in one enactment the various Acts through which the law is at present scattered. For the rest the amendments are, as is believed, of an unimportant character directed solely to clearing up points as to which there exists a conflict between the various High Courts. The Bill makes no other changes in the law.

"For some years past there has been a difference of opinion as to the period of time within which suits to enforce payment of money secured by mortgages other than English mortgages might be brought: some High Courts have held that the period was sixty years and that the case was governed by Article 147; other High Courts have held that Article 132 applied and that the time was twelve years. The result has been that the law has differed in different Provinces: in some Provinces the sixty years' rule prevailed: in others twelve years was the time allowed. The Privy Council have now decided that the latter view is correct and that the period of limitation for suits of this character all over India is twelve years and no more. This result has caused considerable hardship in the territories within which the sixty years' rule had prevailed. Suits for the enforcement of mortgages which before the decision of the Privy Council would have been within time, have been and must be dismissed by Courts on the ground that they are barred by limitation: and claims under a still larger number of mortgages have become unenforceable owing to the construction now put upon the Statute. Mortgagees relied and were entitled to rely on the view of the law taken by the High Courts of their respective Provinces, and it does not seem fair that they should lose their rights merely because that view has now turned out to be incorrect. The Government of India are of opinion that some provision should be made to meet these cases and the Bill accordingly proposes that suits in the Provinces in which the sixty years' rule prevailed, may be brought within two years from the passing of the Bill: it also provides for the continuance of pending suits and for the restoration of suits which have been dismissed on the ground of limitation since the date of the Privy Council decision.

"Further amendments, my Lord, are required, as I have said, to make the law of limitation conform to the new proposals in regard to civil procedure. The two Statutes are to some extent interwoven and it is not possible to amend the one without making necessary some amendments in the other. Such of these amendments as are matters of substance have been recommended either by the Select Committee of 1903 or by the Special Committee of 1907 and have been already discussed in connection with the Code of Civil Procedure Bill. Some objection has been taken to the definition of 'moveable property', a definition recommended by the Select Committee of 1903, and that objection will be carefully considered. The other amendments of substance are not, as is thought, of a contentious character. Beyond these, the changes are mere matters of form.

"Another class of amendments is that necessitated by differences entertained by various High Courts as to the construction of the present Act. I have already made reference to one difference which the Privy Council have now finally determined, but there are other cases in which similar conflicts exist, conflicts which may result in the same sort of hardship. It seems most desirable to take an early opportunity of ending these conflicts by legislation. It is believed that the amendments required raise no general questions of importance.

"Other changes in the existing periods of limitation have been suggested to the Government of India but have been rejected on the ground that they raise questions of principle and for that reason, even if beneficial in themselves, are not within the scope of this Bill; such for instance are proposals for the reduction of the period of limitation now given by Articles 145, 146 and 147 of the existing Act. The tendency of modern legislation is beyond doubt to shorten the time of limitation and on general principles that is a result to be desired. But in India we must proceed slowly: changes of the law in these respects are apt to create hardship and in many matters, especially in those relating to land, Western legislation is not a safe precedent for India. Moreover we have in this as in other questions to take into account the great difference in practice in the various Provinces. It has been suggested for instance that the period of 60 years allowed under the existing law for suits for redemption should be curtailed and that, following English law, one uniform period should be enacted for all mortgage suits: a suggestion which has the support of high authority. But it is clear that in India any such change would have far-reaching results and that however desirable in some Provinces it would be altogether opposed to the habits of the people in others. This is an illustration of the sort of difference to which I have referred. I mention these matters in passing, because they have been the subject of some discussion in connection with the present Bill, but they are not material to the motion before the Council; for the Bill is intended to be restricted and will, I think, be found to be restricted to minor amendments for the most part of a non-contentious character.

"My Lord, if the amendments to which I have called attention were alone in print this Bill would be of small dimensions but it has been thought desirable to take this opportunity of reprinting the present Limitation Act with the amendments which have been made in it from time to time by the Legislature since 1877 and those now proposed. There are no less than eleven amending Acts already on the Statute-book, and it is from every point of view desirable to substitute one enactment for the twelve, or if this Bill were passed in the form of an amending Bill only, for the thirteen, in which the law would otherwise be contained. Our Statute-book, if I may use that expression for convenience though it is not accurate in fact, is full of amending Acts: there are some 350 Acts of general application and of these about 120 are amending Acts, many of them making but trifling changes, altering a few words or perhaps a clause or two. The result is that our collection of Statutes has become confused and complicated, and that it is increasingly difficult for those who have to refer to it to find the law with accuracy. The Government of India from time to time issue copies of Acts as amended up to date, but these copies have no authority and the amending volumes are themselves the sources of some confusion. It seems desirable therefore, when opportunity offers, to consolidate Acts, that is, to reprint them as amended, repealing the amending Acts in the manner proposed in the present case and so to simplify the Statute-book. 'Consolidation' is a long word, but in this connection it means reprinting and nothing more.

"A draft Bill containing the amendments now before this Council and some others put forward for discussion but not adopted, was circulated to Local Governments and others some two months since: but owing to a misunderstanding which has only recently come to my notice an altogether insufficient interval was allowed for replies. I have to express my regrets to those consulted that this was so. These criticisms with which we are favoured on our legislative proposals are of the utmost value and it would be most unwise for this Council to pass any Act such as this until it had been sufficiently discussed. The Bill as now before this Council is not, as I have said, of a contentious character, but adequate opportunity for discussion must be given before it is passed into law."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. ERLE RICHARDS introduced the Bill.

The Hon'ble MR. ERLE RICHARDS moved that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English and in the local official Gazettes in English and in such other languages as the Local Governments think fit.

The motion was put and agreed to.

INDIAN TARIFF (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. BAKER moved for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Indian Tariff Act, 1894. He said:—"The object of this Bill is to give effect to the recommendation of the Excise Commission that the import duty on imported beer and the excise duty on beer made in India should be raised from one anna to two annas a gallon. The present rates have never been altered since they were imposed in 1863 and 1890, respectively. They do not act as a check on consumption. In 1889 the imports were about 3 million gallons, while the breweries in the country turned out about 5 millions. Last year these amounts had risen to about 5 millions and nearly 6 millions, respectively. The Excise Committee found that beer drinking by the native population was on the increase in Madras and Bangalore, and probably also in Burma, and that a commencement of such consumption had recently been observed in parts of Northern India and in Sind. Moreover, beer which is valued at more than Re. 1-4 a gallon, when taxed at one anna a gallon, pays less in proportion to its value than it would do under the ordinary tariff rate of 5 per cent. ad valorem. This preferential treatment of alcoholic liquors cannot be defended.

"The Bill raises the tariff rate on imported beer to two annas a gallon. The excise-duty will be raised to a similar figure by Local Governments under their Excise laws.

"I may add that under the term 'beer' I include the other liquors which are classed with it in Schedule III of the Tariff Act, namely, ale and porter, cider and other fermented liquors."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. BAKER introduced the Bill.
